Huge LLL budget announced

LIVERMORE — Lawrence Livermore Laboratory officials have announced a 1978 budget increase of $43.1 million for programs and $120.4 million for start of new facilities construction.

Most of the lab's 6,381 employees were given an oral report Friday by LLL Director Roger E. Batzel, who said their numbers will swell another five per cent (334) in the coming fiscal year.

Although the weapons program has dropped from 70 to 50 per cent of the lab's program in the past five years, Batzel said "a guiding principle in the choice of new programs must be that they do not interfere with our ability to accomplish weapon goals."

The $291.3 million 1978 budget includes four major construction projects. A $12.3 million office building will house 350 staff members when it is completed in 1980. The structure is expected to relieve a severe shortage of permanent office space.

However, the number of temporary office trailers is expected to increase from 437 to 600 by the end of the current fiscal year, he said.

The lab's proposed high explosive flash radiography facility at Corral Hollow is budgeted for $10.9 million. It is expected to improve the lab's capability for accommodating sophisticated non-nuclear experiments in its weapons program.

The next major research experiment in magnetic fusion energy is assigned $94 million, with $14 million for next year's budget.

The SHIVA NOVA project — to demonstrate scientific feasibility of laser fusion in the early 1980's — will account for a $3 million slice of the budget for extensive upgrading of the SHIVA laser.

Batzel said he expected continued growth of present major programs.

He plans to be in Washington, D.C., tomorrow to outline LLL programs to the new House Armed Services Subcommittee on Intelligence and Military Applications of Nuclear Energy.

With uncertainty over the B-1 bomber program, Batzel was asked if a drastic cutback by President Carter would affect the lab's work on designing a bomb for the plane.

"President Carter has decided to build the first five," he told The Times. He also said "the bomb we are designing is not only for the B-1, but the B-52 and other planes. It won't affect our program."

Batzel was also asked about energy, water and effluent considerations that might have been factors in expansion decisions.

"Certainly we worry about the lab's impact on surrounding communities," he said, noting several LLL programs are designed to improve environmental problems. One such project is research for in-place processing of coal to obtain methane gas, a clean burning fuel.

The lab director also announced a 17 per cent increase in weapons research, from $127.6 million in 1977 to $140.4 million in 1978.

Other budget increases include laser fusion (32 per cent, from $28.1 to $37 million), advanced isotope separation (37 per cent, from $8.1 to $11.1 million), magnetic fusion energy (13 per cent, from $21.3 to $24 million), MFE computer center (63 per cent, from $3.8 to $6.2 million), energy and resources (50 per cent, from $16.3 to $24.5 million), and bio-medical and environmental (20 per cent, from $8.7 to $10.5 million).

"I expect some further growth beyond fiscal 1978, although the rate is not clear," he said.

He noted that since he became director in 1971 the overall budget has increased 125 per cent, including the new budget. Number of employees in that period rose 30 per cent.

Batzel also announced more than 9,000 people have been to the visitor center since it opened last August.

Santa Rita operations investigated

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — A personal tour of the Santa Rita jail planned by county supervisors Valerie Raymond and Charles Santana has been shelved.

The two said last week they would hold off on their request because of grand jury and judicial inquiries already being made into the Feb. 6 fracas involving most of the jail's 140 women inmates.

The grand jury has asked county sheriff Thomas Houchins and some of his "key people" to appear March 9, the sheriff said.

He also will report to the board of supervisors Tuesday.

The county's three women municipal court judges, Jacqueline Taber, Marie B. Collins and Marilyn Hall Patel, are conducting their own investigation into charges women inmates were mistreated.

The women "rioted" in the mess hall earlier this month reportedly to stop one inmate from being locked up for insubordination. Fifty-three of them were taken to the previously all-male, maximum security "Greystone" section to simmer down, Houchins said, where about two dozen remain.

The women have charged they were denied basic hygiene and were being monitored by male guards.

Sheriff Houchins, who calls it a "disturbance," said guards forgot to supply sanitary napkins the first night, but that toilets and showers always have been available.

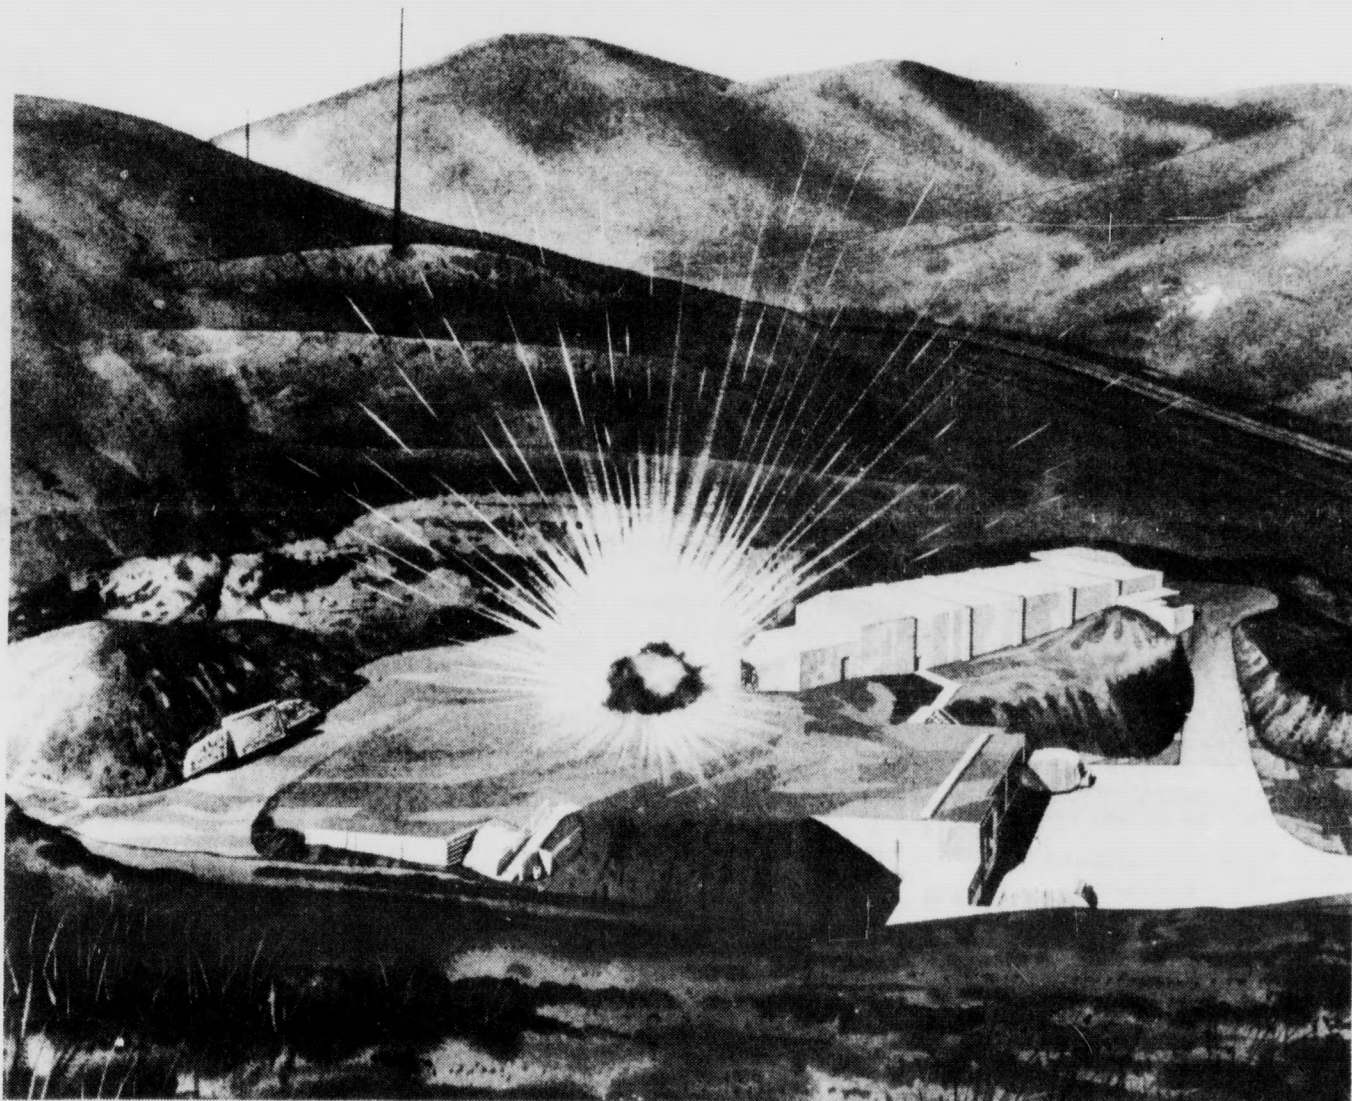

The napkin problem was corrected and amale guard only sees female inmates when a woman guard is present.

"We're already talking to a lot of people, and we've got a lot more to talk to," said Judge Collins. Both guards and inmates are being interviewed.

"We'd like to wrap it up in a couple of weeks," said Judge Taber. "We're working very, very hard, doing it in our spare time, sometimes until midnight, to get it done."

Neither would elaborate on their findings to date.

This proposed $10.9 million High Explosive Flash Radiography Facility is one of four major construction items in the new LLL budget.

Residents protest dumping

PLEASANTON — Vintage Hills residents who don't like the illegal dumping on vacant lots there ought to confront the dumpers directly, developer Harry Elliott, Jr. told The Times Friday.

Responding to complaints by neighbors that vacant lots on Palomino Drive and on Chardonay Court are littered, Elliott said he doesn't like it any better than the neighbors, but he personally can't stop it.

"The thing that bothers me is that people in Vintage Hills complain, but I'm not the party who dumps the trash," said Elliott. "Some of the residents of Vintage Hills are dumping concrete there and some of the people they hire to put in their swimming pools are putting dirt fill on the lot. I had 'no trespass' signs up, but someone tore them down."

It's only a half dozen or so Vintage Hills residents who cause the problem and when neighbors see the littering going on, they ought to confront the litterers, said Elliott. It may help to call police, too, but the real solution is to get involved personally, he said. "If the stuff were being dumped in their own yards, they'd confront the dumpers," said Elliott. "What happens is that people see a convenient place on the corner where someone already has dumped concrete or dirt fill, so they put their stuff there, too, to avoid a $4 charge at the dump."

Elliott also responded to a criticism by Palomino Drive resident Lani Battleson, who said Elliott should not have left vacant lots while opening up a new addition to Vintage Hills.

Amador sets strike plan

The Amador Valley Joint High School District has setup the machinery to presumably take in stride any strike of the district's 200-plus teachers.

One of the eight resolutions passed at an extraordinary early Friday morning session says "all employee absences must be substantiated by written proof of the need for the leave; pay and benefits will not be granted to leaves of absence unless the employee worked or was validly excused from work both the day before the absence and the work day after the absence; employees requesting pay for sick leave must complete a signed affidavit of illness and provide a doctor's certificate of illness."

The other resolutions passed, all 4-0 with Dr. Geraldine Donaldson absent, dealt with discretionary authority, unauthorized absences, short term or substitute classified employees, closing of school facilities, contract for services and premium pay for substitutes.

Drought results spark forecasts for dim future

The worst drought in state history, extending over an unprecedented second straight year, may spell economic disaster if there is no relief soon, Bay Area water management officials warned Friday.

At a meeting of local water management officials called by Pleasanton Assemblyman Floyd Mori in Hayward Friday, experts said increased hardships are certain unless relief is soon in coming. Instead of worrying about brown lawns, the public will have to deal with:

- Poor quality water. With the proportion of salt water to fresh water becoming more out of balance as the drought continues, water is becoming saltier, harder and more polluted. As groundwater pumping is increased, the quality falls even further.

- Higher food bills. California supplies 65 per cent of the nation's crops, and many of these have been destroyed due to lack of water. Now farmers fear the vines and trees that grow many of these crops are dying too, and may take years to replace.

- Reduced energy supplies. As reservoirs dry up, less water flows through dam floodgates and hydroelectric plants generate less electricity. Added to an existing energy crisis and the hardest eastern winter in history, energy prices will continue to climb.

- Smaller fish populations. Plans are being considered to sharply reduce water shipments to state fish hatcheries, which could decrease production of fingerlings. With streams at their lowest levels in years, the production of fish is threatened.

Valley youth killed

David J. Spence, 17, of Livermore died en route to Valley Memorial hospital Saturday following an auto collision on Arroyo Road, 2½ miles south of Livermore about 5:30 p.m. Also injured when the 1966 station wagon went out of control and hit a tree broadside were Richard Thompson, 16, of Pleasanton, and two brothers, Michael, 16, and Richard Laffin, 13, both of Livermore.

The driver of the car was not identified by the investigating California Highway Patrol.

Council eyes tree issue

Elba Leonard's walnut tree is the subject of a public hearing by the Livermore City Council Monday.

Council wants 327.9 square feet off the corner of his property to make way for an extension of Railroad Boulevard so that road can connect with Stanley Boulevard. Leonard is objecting because he grew the tree from a single walnut 50 years ago.

Pleasanton studies zoning

The City of Pleasanton will look at some controversial zoning and design issues tomorrow. In the spotlight will be the question of median breaks for left turn traffic on Hopyard Road into the proposed Oak Tree Center, redesign of the Del Valle Parkway, and rezoning of 53 acres in Mission Park which includes "the hill".

Supervisor opens office

Contra Costa County's fifth district supervisor, Eric Hasseltine, has opened a temporary office at 801 San Ramon Valley Blvd., Suite J in Danville.

Volunteers, Linda Best and Carol Rosenblum, will be in that office Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to noon and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to noon. They will be working on special research projects for the supervisor.

Hasseltine will be in the Danville office Saturdays to meet with groups of area residents.

Song writer sees friend in promoter

LIVERMORE — James Parker, the penniless lyrical Robin Hood who wants to make a fortune writing songs, then give the majority of it away, is a little closer to his dream today.

The 28-year old oil rig worker from Los Angeles who proclaimed Wednesday he's here to publish country and western tunes, and have them recorded by major artists, has a promoter.

It's Lela Peterson, a manager and promoter for various C&W stars, who overheard Parker's fantastic tale in a Sambo's Restaurant Friday morning.

She says she wants to help him break into the field. Lela began promoting country artists 40 years ago, and once, was nominated best in her field by a San Jose radio station. "They gave me a gold seal and a hand made guitar," she smiled.

Water unit stalls vote on pipeline

LIVERMORE — Two and a half hours of voting on nearly every option to combat the Valley's sewage disposal crisis failed Friday night as the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Board tabled any action for one more week.

LAVWMA directors were scheduled to select a pipeline route and the date for a revenue bond election, but no progress was made as the board consecutively defeated each agency's individual proposals to solve the deadlock.

The City of Livermore's resolution for a November election on the most suitable project was defeated 4-2. Pleasanton and Dublin voting it down. The delay would allow time for review of all alternatives, but threatens government-grant funding of 87.5 per cent, which must be secured by Sept. 30.

Pleasanton's proposal also calling for November but extending the project selection date to Aug. 8 was also defeated 4-2. Livermore and the Valley Community Services District stopping the move.

VCSD's choice for a May 31 election of a broadly-worded ballot, intended to allow the best project to be selected later also failed 4-2.

LAVWMA directors are considering three export pipelines, to dump sewage at outfalls either in Suisun Bay or north or south San Francisco Bay. Project selection must be completed by March 31.

Because the Valley continues to dump effluent into Alameda Creek, which fouls the fresh water supplies of Fremont, state officials have clamped a ban on additional sewer hookups until an alternate sewage disposal method is assured. That is effectively keeping a building ban on the Valley, although partial relief could occur soon.

LAVWMA will meet again Thursday, March 3 at 7 p.m. at VCSD offices, 7051 Dublin Blvd. in Dublin. The delay will give members time to return to their respective councils and attempt to resolve the stalemate.

Top citizen

John Amaral, charter member of the Pleasanton Lions Club, was honored this week as Outstanding Citizen for 1976-77. The award, an annual presentation, was made to Amaral on the basis of his involvement in the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce, fire department, Pleasanton Jaycees, and other community services. Amaral carries a 37-year perfect attendance pin in the Lions Club, and has served on nearly every committee for the group.

Pleasanton will pay fireman's legal fees

PLEASANTON — The city council voted 3-2 to pay George Withers' attorney fees in his recent appeal of his fire department demotion.

Withers was reduced in rank from captain to lieutenant by City Manager Bill Edgar on recommendation of the fire department administration, but was reinstated after the city employees' personnel board found on a split vote that the city manager acted without proper substantiation.

The vote to pay $3,036 in attorneys fees saw Mayor Robert Philcox, and Council Members Ken Mercer and Frank Brandes in support and Vice-mayor Joyce LeClaire and Council Member William Herlihy in opposition. Brandes said, "Any time a public agency causes a person to go to court or similar action and incur attorney's fees and the political entity loses, it should also have to pay attorney's costs. I feel this way about the Internal Revenue Service and similar things."

Brandes felt that approval of Withers' reimbursement will not set a precedent for any other case that could occur in the city in the future.

Herlihy voted against the action because he felt it could set a precedent. He noted that another fireman, Ted Klenk, also had action taken against him by Edgar. Klenk did not choose to appeal Edgar's decision, but what if he did or does, said Herlihy. The council's action would seem to encourage city employees filing appeals in the future with the "knowledge" that if they win, they will have attorney's fees paid, said Herlihy.

The council also authorized payment of $105 as witness fees and travel expenses to one of Withers' chief witnesses, former fire chief Jon Frudden, who traveled from his fire department job in Pismo Beach to give testimony one day. It was less than the $226 requested by Withers. It rejected Withers' request for $450 reimbursement for a court reporter because the entire proceedings were taped by the city.

Drought spurs meet

Exodus of residents Many experts think the prospects of a long - continuing drought will force out - of - work or other affected persons to seek better economic climates elsewhere. This would tend to lower tax revenues thus increasing each person's burden, decrease the flow of cash in a given community, and generally have a negative multiplier effect on all.

Unless the Bay Area receives 240 per cent more rain by spring than it has already received this season, these and other hardships would have to be shared in varying degrees across the state.

Government representatives led by Mori included Assemblymen Alister McAllister and Bill Lockyer, and assistants to Congressmen Pete Stark and Don Edwards, State Senators Alfred Alquist and John Holmdahl. They met with water management officials from the Valley, EBMUD, Fremont, Hetch - Hetchy and the State Water Resources Control Board.

Mun Mar, general manager of the Zone 7 water management board told Mori that the Valle is still in "pretty good shape" due to conservation, membership in the State Water Project and generous groundwater reserves. But a 20 per cent reduction expected next year in imported water, which supplies 70 per cent of the Valley's fresh water, coupled with a continued drought, could cause problems by next winter.

Mori said the state would attempt to stop shipping Northern California water to the south by May 1. Meanwhile, local districts hope to construct a pipeline parallel to the Richmond - San Rafael Bridge by June 1 to transport water to bone - dry Marin County.

But while Marin County is primarily residential, the East Bay is highly industrial and would suffer more if rationing was adopted. Agricultural interests, which use 85 per cent of water statewide, would be the first and largest group cut, with industry second and residential users rationed last.

Mori summed up the tasks ahead of politicians and the public alike by concluding Friday's conference with a simple summation of the current water shortage crisis: "It doesn't look good. It doesn't look good at all."

Song writer finds friendly promoter

She books singers and bands in the Bay Area and in the nation's country and western capital, Nashville.

"I've booked Judy Lynn, Ola Louise, Bobby Parrish, Clossey Brothers and hundreds of others," she said. "Years ago I helped Tennessee Ernie get on KXLA in Pasadena, along with Squeakin' Deacon."

Lela has already undertaken the career of the visionary Parker, planning radio and television talk show appearances.

"With Jim's permission," she said, "I would like to help him with his career — in other words — push him to the top."

Parker says he began his lyric-writing just last week. But already he is collaborating with a song-writer for a tune called, "Love Beyond."

His partner, Parker says, wrote songs for country great Marty Robbins.

Parker, who hopes to make a great deal of money from the lyrics, says he'll use it to support his family (he's legally separated), to pay "musicians and people who help me," and for charities.

"I've already made arrangements with the Salvation Army in Livermore to accept my donations," he said.

Parker wants his budding career to originate and stay in Livermore.

"I'm a newcomer here and people have been nice to me. I want this town and those people to be remembered. And I've certainly had good luck here."

Parker was recounting his lyrical dream for a news reporter Friday morning when Lela Peterson caught wind of the conversation.

"Livermore is one of my bases of operation," she said.

Turck is presently writing a book on famous ghosts of San Francisco, and is also pursuing experimental research in developing ESP through hypnosis. He is director of the International Ghost Registry and has been featured on television and radio shows across the U.S. and Canada.

Home occupation rule revised in Livermore

LIVERMORE — City Council Wednesday sent a simplified home occupation policy and procedure back to the planning commission to iron out the philosophical foundation for the document.

Two points of view emerged during council discussion on the matter: protection of both residential neighborhoods and established businesses with overhead on the one hand, and the right of individuals to free enterprise in their own homes on the other.

"We need to protect residential neighborhoods," said Councilman John Staley, "but we don't want to set up a situation that will have unfair advantage over established businesses paying overhead."

"If there is no impact in the residential neighborhood," argued Councilman Glen Dahlbacka, "I see no reason to prohibit a home occupation if it is legal and has a business license."

"I can't say it doesn't sometimes provide unfair advantage, but we get the problem of regulating free exercise of rights in their home." Mayor Helen Tirsell, who noted difficulty of enforcing such regulations, said the city usually encourages home occupations as a starting place for fledgling businesses, which can later move into an established commercial shop.

Councilman Dale Turner stated opposition to home occupations, calling residential areas "a place where you can get away from the normal business activities."

Council also expressed concern over lack of definition for full time and part time businesses. One example given was an attorney which would not be allowed a full time business in the home, but would be allowed to have a part time business there if he or she had a regular office elsewhere full time.

Staley, an attorney, noted he has a desk at home and makes some business calls from his home telephone, but said he was against allowing a part time law office in a home. "It is wrong," he said. "I see my clients downtown."

Lifestyle hosts community 'doers' and 'movers'

Community activists were surprised and impressed with their own numbers at a pair of receptions hosted by the Lifestyle department of The Times for representatives from valley clubs and organizations. More than 100 clubs were counted at the congenial gathering which provided a first opportunity for many community leaders to meet one another.

It was apparent that there are more women working these days, but the receptions provided a nice break from the routine of office or home. Among Pleasanton's oldest homes, the residence of Editor John Edmonds and his wife, Gene, was the ideal setting for the occasion, with its spacious rooms and comfortable appointments. Serving tea or coffee, and passing the guest book were Lifestyle reporters Lucy Hobgood-Brown and Arline Butterfield.

Community leaders seemed to appreciate the fact that The Times is "their" newspaper, but had many questions about how to put it to the best use. Lifestyle Editor Jean McKenna emphasized her department's willingness to rally its professional know-how to the cause of community service organizations, and offered helpful hints on publicity.

"What makes us tick? You do!" she explained. "The lifeblood of our newspaper is community news, and you are our most valuable link with the people of this valley."

Valley clubs which may have been overlooked and did not attend either reception hosted by the Lifestyle department of The Times, are welcome to call Jean McKenna at 462-4160. Their publicity chairpersons will then be included on the upcoming reception's guest list for professional women's and men's clubs, to be held in the evening at a future date. Call us!

Jane Inslee of the Livermore Lithophiles, Anna Bartle who represented Veterans of World War I, and Viola Jensen of the Danebod signed the guest register.

Lifestyle Editor Jean McKenna fielded questions on how valley clubs can utilize their local newspaper to the fullest.

Watch what you eat week

"Nutrition: Foodway to Fun and Fitness," is the theme for National Nutrition Week March 6 through March 12.

Maintaining nutritious eating habits and exercising regularly should actually be fun, while guidelines to physical fitness are neither confusing or monotonous, says a spokesman for the California Dietetic Association of Diablo Valley.

National Nutrition Week calls attention to the simplicity of selecting nutritious and delicious food from the USDA Four Food Group system of milk, meats, vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals.

Milk, the main source of calcium for bones, teeth, nerves, muscles and blood should be served at the ration of three glasses per day for children, four glasses for teenagers and two glasses for adults. Servings of ice cream and cheese may be substituted for some milk portions.

In the meat group, an important source of protein, iron, niacin and other B vitamins, two daily servings are recommended.

Meats, poultry, fish and eggs are included in this group along with peanut butter, dried beans, peas and nuts.

Four daily choices from the vegetables and fruits are recommended. One of these selections should either be a citrus fruit or juice, tomatoes or tomato juice, all high sources of vitamin C.

Yellow or dark green leafy vegetables, excellent sources of vitamin A, should be included in the diet three or four times a week.

The bread and cereals group provides iron and significant amounts of the B vitamins. Bread and cereals should either be whole grain or enriched.

A variety of choices from the Four Food Groups should be coupled with regular exercise. Walking, bicycling and swimming are all effective ways to burn up calories and shape up bodies.

Shelter helps battered wives

Battered women will be the topic of JoAnne LeFils, director of the Emergency Shelter Program in Hayward, when she addresses the March 2 meeting of Tri-Valley N.O.W.

The public is welcome to the 8 p.m. program at the Livermore Library. The N.O.W. meeting convenes at 7:30.

Ms. LeFils reports that there is a growing awareness of the needs of battered women. The Emergency Shelter offers a 24-hour assistance to women and children who are homeless, destitute or have no where else to go in a crisis. They are given temporary shelter, food and counseling.

Child care services are available for those attending the meeting if arrangements are made 24 hours in advance through Cheryl Giles at 846-9041.

Negotiating

From San Ramon to Livermore, in Pleasanton and in Dublin, the report these days is of "school boards and teachers at an impasse in those contract talks." But the truth is trustees and teachers rarely talk to each other, and never during the trauma of those negotiations.

The issues, we are told, are salary steps, grievance procedures, compulsory arbitration. But the division that now finds school boards and educators "unable to communicate on the issues" began when those community servants stopped communicating with each other ... in the classrooms which have somehow become lost in the bureaucracy of Public Education.

This newspaper's staff has spent a great deal of time these past few weeks, talking to teachers, to elected trustees and to appointed administrators. What we learned from those discussions is enlightening; but it is not encouraging.

"I have never seen a board member in my classroom," is a typical teacher's report, "see the superintendent maybe once a year and the principal or vice principal on very rare occasion." From several trustees we sought a reaction to that comment.

"I work out of town and am rarely here during the school day," was one response. "But I have made a point of visiting every school at least once a year, although admittedly after hours when there are few if any teachers around."

We do not not know that this applies to every administrator and every trustee; we do know that the operation of our schools is drifting into impersonal, bureaucratic channels that in no way reflect the small-town sensitivity of these several communities.

None of us outside those contract talks have any magic answer to break the deadlocks, to get local education back into the classroom. But we might all insist that those charged with operation of our schools first find ways to deal with each other.

And they must do it before there is yet another impasse in a new round of contract negotiations which begin in less than four months.

Valerie and Eric

She started out by challenging the board of supervisors' buddy system in the matter of commission appointments.

In short order she took on the Sheriff of Alameda County, the prison he operates and the system he administers.

She dares to question the decade-old plan to build a new county jail in Hayward and she has the audacity to suggest that the giant sand and gravel industry in this Valley is something less than "a responsible member of the community."

Supervisor Valerie Raymond is everywhere these days, it seems. We don't know that she's always in the right place at the right time; she's the first to admit that "I still don't know the system operates."

But there can be no doubt about Valerie's presence, stirring up dust in some very politically-sacred ground.

Meanwhile, over in the sprawling Fifth Supervisorial District of Contra Costa County, a rookie member of that board is making certain the southern reaches of his district are not forgotten by county servants in far-off Martinez.

Eric Hasseltine has kept his promise to "keep in touch" with the people of San Ramon Valley, even while he must also represent the northernmost, more populous regions of the county. A branch office of county government is being established in Danville; toll-free calling is available into county offices at Martinez; even more significant, Hasseltine promises to "make it possible for a private citizen to get a county permit with one stop in Martinez, rather than stopping at a hundred different bureaus." At the other end of the building spectrum, Hasseltine serves notice that he will not readily allow the vast stretches of virgin land in his district to be taken over by developers, just for development's sake.

All of which may sound strange to those "good old boys" in Contra Costa and Alameda counties accustomed to county supervisors who often build first, and question later.

Valerie and Eric are a couple of Valley freshmen in the College of County Politics; but we would be inclined to give them a first-semester grade of "A" in aggressiveness and "B-plus" for bravery ... two subjects that most of us taxpayers thought weren't even being taught anymore.

The week in retrospect

Trustee choices

The antithesis of any election campaign, from this writer's view, is the candidate, almost always an incumbent, who exerts little or no effort to be reelected.

This situation is aided and abetted when the incumbent(s) has few challengers. Further compounding this is a lack of "candidates nights" or forums for expression of qualifications and views.

The latter is alleviated somewhat by news media that traditionally send out questionnaires or interview the candidates, and subsequently run articles on the various aspirants.

We are not sure if it is total confidence, lack of free time or an apathetic community, but the Amador school district trustee campaign to date has suffered from acute lethargy.

No candidates nights have been held to date (though one is scheduled Thursday, March 3 at Harvest Park School), the four candidates have presented a total of three releases (which were requested), and if one person in ten (including district teachers) knows who the incumbents and challengers are, we'd be surprised.

There has been considerable activity in the San Ramon school district and the Livermore and Murray school districts. Things are perking amongst the six Pleasanton candidates though the one incumbent, Al Dutchover, is apparently content to rest on his record.

We are certainly not among the first ones to say this, but the selection of candidates in the Amador district is ludicrous. The Amador board, collectively, is and has been inflexible and unresponsive. Not only in the matter of contract negotiations but in such matters as visiting classes and meeting with teachers and administrators — aside from at board meetings once a month.

Particularly after conversations in recent weeks, we could conclude that a wall of impersonal feeling now separates teachers, building level administrators, central office administration and the board.

We would hope that this is not true, but all comments, all signs, from both teachers and administrators, point to this.

Then there's the parents ... who pay teacher and administrator alike to do a quality job, and which requires a certain amount of harmony. We elect trustees to represent us and carry out our bidding.

Neither trustee or school administrator, from Superintendent Bruce Newlin on down, should be permitted to think they can sit and expect the public to come to them. Especially an incumbent school board member or aspirant for same.

No segment of the news media is obligated to support or endorse to candidates for two board positions or three for three positions open ... when only one in that entire field has worked hard to earn the public's vote.

Letters to the Times

Her candidate

Editor, The Times:

In less than thirty days, Livermore voters will have an opportunity to place four new members on the Board of Education. The sensitivity, insight and intelligence Gail Sidhu has exhibited during her recent campaign make her a natural for one of these seats.

Mrs. Sidhu understands that there are varied approaches to education ... each unquestionably valid; that no two child's needs are exactly alike; and that parents must be seriously involved in the decision-making processes of the school board.

Let us elect those people to the school board who will listen to us. Let us begin with Gail Sidhu.

Mrs. Jack (Peggy) Johnston

SP condemnation

Editor, The Times:

Although the city's own literature on the Proposed Railroad Avenue Relocation shows very clearly that a small portion of my property is to be acquired by the Southern Pacific Land Development Corp., I am now being threatened with condemnation by the City of Livermore.

This corporation is owned by the Southern Pacific Railroad but deals entirely in private enterprise, Commercial Development and has no condemnation rights. As has been previously shown, the rights of condemnation privileges for the railroads were cancelled in 1972. The only exception is for logging purposes.

The city has no legal right to institute condemnation against private property for the enhancement of any private enterprise concerns.

It has been stated and so shown by the local news media, that the Railroad Avenue realignment is definitely for the purpose of enhancing the Southern Pacific Arcade Shopping Center, making it also an illegal program. The city's actions against me, therefore, constitutes harassment, another violation of the laws.

In addition, the relocation will create more hazardous intersections than it eliminates along with more smog and noise contamination.

This is the type of actions we have had in our city for some time now and it is time to put an end to it.

Elba L. Leonard
Livermore

Double decker

Anyone will sell you a split level. Only Allied Brokers drives one. That's why the real estate agency spent $10,000 three years ago for an authentic double-decker bus from London.

It is a picturesque two-story monster that rumbles and snorts, and serves, according to its owners, as a moving billboard.

You and I would call it a gimmick. With due respect for Anglo Saxon charm, however, think of it as a promotional tool. Certainly it is the most visual advertisement on the block. If you haven't seen it around Pleasanton, you've been driving blindfolded.

It's the real thing, straight from Pica-dilly Circus, with modifications, of course. The five-cylinder Bristol diesel engine has been supplanted by an American power plant. The interior has been refurbished. Outside signboards that once advertised the fashion palaces of Knightsbridge, like Harrod's and Harvey Nichols, have been removed. Painted in their place is the logo of the real estate firm that now owns deed to four wheels of British heritage.

The other change is in the rear of the bus. On fare duty, a pug-faced Cockney manned the back door. He took the schilling, or told you to wait for the next coach. Allied replaced him with a nattily attired cabin attendant — a sacrifice of charm for high-styled promotion.

The Brokers purchased the bus in 1974 from British Promotions. The scheme was cooked up by a public relations man who thought it an eye-catcher for business. Allied thought it madness at first.

Now, however, the company is convinced of the bus' worth. Brokers can't point to a sales boost and attribute it to the grumbling relic of the road. They're sure, however, that it's promotional value is high.

It had better be. The bus runs up an annual maintenance fee of $20,000.

For a long time the bus was available to the community. It served a myriad of public functions, transporting cheer leaders to the Livermore High School football game, one evening, carrying ticket holders to the opera on another occasion.

But insurance costs have zoomed past $11,000 a year, and for now at least, Allied has closed the bus doors. Employees board it twice a week to tour real estate new on the market.

The rest of the time, save for parade invitations, it's in the garage.

According to realtor Ron Smith, Allied wants to resume community transport, if palatable insurance rates can be found. Community relations is the key to the double decker, he says.

In the meantime, the firm will crank up its big red machine when possible, hoping that a bit of expensive authenticity can make promotion pay off.

Round the town

The coffee crisis is much worse than first believed. Tea too.

I can think of no other reason why 150 people would respond to a "tea and coffee social" invite. They came, they drank, and they filled our ancient manor to the busting point.

Not all in one day, silly. We had the good sense to stretch them out over two days. Figured "maybe 50 or 60 will come each day." It was more like 70 to 80. A very hungry bunch.

Each was the president or "publicity chairperson" for a Valley organization ... Lithophiles and Las Damas ... Twin Valley YMCA to TOPS ... two came from "Build The Earth" while each of the Recycling Centers sent a rep.

"We just wanted to meet you," was our simple message to that throng, scrunched into the living room and spilling over into the fireplace. "And to see if there was anything you wanted to ask us ..."

That last invite was one too many. Some of the questions they asked I wouldn't have put to my mother.

"Is this house really as old as it looks ... or does it just creak this way when it's full of people?"

"You say you use computers to set all your type ... can computers also correct spelling mistakes?" (Most computers can't even spell "compewter".)

"Where's the JOHN?" (And they don't mean the tall guy with the skin head.)

And so it went. Starting Thursday afternoon and on into Friday morning. A gathering of the Valley's finest. The men and women who are the lifeblood of "community service" ... one hundred and forty clubs, associations, lodges and just "Incs." ... the people who wander our streets by day, fill the meeting halls at night ... who will sell you pizza or a potluck at the drop of a dime ... who'll even raid your garbage can if you aren't careful with your aluminum cans.

You've all met them, one or two at a time, hammering on the front door or sneaking in the back. Trying to sell, to borrow, or (if you fail to lock the closet door) to steal "those old things you'll never wear anymore." They labor to serve the needy, the neglected, the disadvantaged. Sometimes they work with the imprisoned. Sometimes they're just one step out of jail with their enthusiasm.

"Why do you newspaper people chop down to two paragraphs a club report that took me two days and four pages to compose?"

"Is there any logic in how you make up your pages ... or do things just sort of fall together a piece at a time?" Yes, it's much like baking a cake, on that score.

"I've always been told that every story has to include The Five W's ... so how come your own reporters write so many reports that leave me wondering 'where' or 'when'?"

If I had known they were going to ask embarrassing questions like that, I would have hired a phone booth for our reception, and greeted them one at a time.

A few came to haunt us. "Aren't you the parents of the girl that used to date my son way back in ...?" One dear soul from Livermore recalled her childhood friendship with "the Fennon family" ... resurrecting a part of our family tree that brought a quiet tear to the lady of our house.

Ah yes, it was all very wonderful, very "old town." We talked about their kids, and our dog; we compared wallpapers, we exchanged snaps of "OUR grandchild." (One faithful reader of this column noted: "I've been waiting a long time to get equal time with you in this business of grandparenting.")

And so it went. We asked the first bunch to come at 2, figured they'd leave by 3:30. They started to arrive at 1:30, were still there at 4. At the morning session, one female type returned at half past the noon hour ... "Did I leave somebody here who was counting on me for a ride home?"

Each of them left something, as it turned out. A kind word, a thoughtful comment. The memory of a warm face, a real person behind that parade of "news releases." We newspaper people learned something we had always known, but too easily forget ... that the "club people" who give a great deal of themselves to serve others, lose nothing of their own personality in that giving. In fact, I think they gain something, down through the years.

They gained quite a bit in those two sessions at our house, I hope to tell you.

"You mean to say they ate ALL those little baked goodies?" I demanded of Lady of House in Friday's post mortem. "I thought you promised to hold back one or two for my lunch!"

I should know better. When you get involved with leaders in community service, you hold back nothing, nothing at all.

'Pornography a crime'

Editor, The Times:

Thank you for your editorial entitled "Sex and Us" in the Sunday Times of Feb. 20. I am sure that the overwhelming majority of the clergymen of the Valley area would join me in lauding you.

Contrary to what some may think Christians are not anti-sex. As a matter of fact, we recognize sex as one of the beautiful gifts of God for the propagation of the human race and the enrichment of the marriage relationship.

What we do object to is the misuse of sex. The truth of the matter is, whenever God's good gift of sex is misused, it ceased to be a blessing to mankind. Instead, it hurts. God knew what he was doing when he directed us to practice sex responsibly, that is, within the commitment of the marriage bond.

The promoters of pornography are doing our people a great disservice. They are taking what is good and twisting it. The result is an increase in psychological problems, physical disease, violent crime, divorce rates, and a sense of guilt. It would seem appropriate to me that citizens with moral sensitivity should let their voices be heard in support of every attempt to ban pornographic material from the Valley.

I salute the Valley Times for this timely editorial.

Privacy

One result of the computer development has been to spur the quest of bureaucrats for information concerning citizens. Because of the ease of storage in computer banks droves of government workers are kept busy gathering huge quantities of highly personal data. Whether all the information collected is essential to government or even put to reasonable usage, it nevertheless becomes part of the "public record" and may be opened to public inspection under the Freedom of Information Act or similar laws of the various states.

It presents a serious threat to unwarranted invasions of personal privacy. To protect against this Congress enacted the Federal Privacy Act in 1974. California attempted to follow suit in 1975 and 1976 but both efforts were aborted by veto of Governor Brown.

While Brown made his vetoes strictly on the contention of added cost to the state such attempts at safeguarding privacy, unless carefully drafted, run the risk of being counterproductive by affording agencies the secrecy which the Freedom of Information laws have sought to overcome.

Examining these issues Guy J. Sternal, an editor of the University of Pacific Law Review, seeks a means to accommodate "the competing interests of informational privacy and public access" stating that neither "should be accorded a preferential position which unnecessarily limits one right in favor of the other."

Sternal finds inadequacies in present law and in court decisions in both directions. Neither does he feel that the proposals voted last year would have provided the privacy protection desired. He observes that had the bill authored by Senator David Roberti passed it would have "afforded considerably less additional protection than that provided by the Federal Privacy Act."

He is particularly critical of the "permissive" language of the Public Records Act holding that there is "no statutory duty incumbent upon governmental agencies as custodians of this information to protect the data from public access where privacy is threatened."

Referring to court decisions on the question of the balance of public interest versus individual privacy he observes that the courts have tended to an "all or nothing" approach.

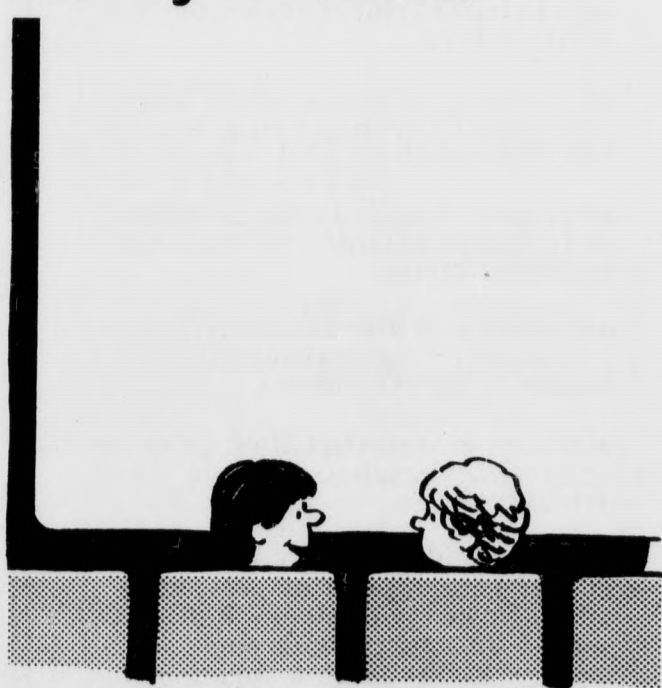

He advances a proposed amendment to this state's Public Records Act which appears to recognize the proclivity of bureaucrats to hide records on the flimsiest of excuses.

What he proposes merits consideration as a possible solution to the conflict which would satisfy the need for access to records while protecting personal data the disclosure of which is not essential to the "public's need to know."

In essence he proposes that, where records contain information which has been made confidential by law, the agency in charge shall have the duty of deleting the data which causes it to be exempt thereby making the remainder open to inspection. He also would give the court authority in any action over records to examine them and order deletions to make the material releasable.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why does the medical profession refuse to accept the fact that natural vitamins are far superior to the synthetic type? Even the findings of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) are based on the results of synthetic vitamins. Tests have proven that synthetic vitamins have a drug-like effect, drawing on the stored resources, thus giving a quick surge of energy, but not actually nourishing a cell.

DEAR READER — The FDA and physicians are accustomed to dealing with facts, not wishful thinking. Let me give you the simplest example I can. You can get water from rain; and, if you collect it properly and it is not contaminated with too many pollutants in the atmosphere, it is a simple chemical made from two atoms of hydrogen and one atom of oxygen. We know exactly how they are hooked together.

You can manufacture water as well by boiling a liquid containing water and allowing the condensate to form as distilled water. Water is also released from the carbohydrates in your food as they are broken down during metabolism. It does not matter how the water is manufactured — by nature from cloud formation, in the laboratory, or in your cells. In each case the molecules are identical or it would not be water.

The same is true of many items that are made in the laboratory as opposed to naturally occurring products. Water is water regardless of where it comes from. A vitamin manufactured by a plant that is chemically identical to a vitamin manufactured in the laboratory is the same thing. You need not pay twice or three times as much for the same thing because of false claims that it is better because it was manufactured by a plant.

I realize that you will not be pleased with my remarks, but I can't change facts just to please you and I am not selling vitamins. You must be reading some terrible misinformation. There are no valid tests at all that synthetic vitamins have a drug-like effect as opposed to natural vitamins. Such fraudulent statements are totally unrelated to facts but are useful to vitamin quacks peddling vitamins to arthritics.

This leads me to the rest of your letter, not included here. I realize you think vitamins improved your arthritis. Your observations have no scientific validity. Rheumatoid arthritis has its ups and downs in the natural course of the disease. I am glad you feel better but vitamins do not cure or relieve arthritis and anyone with such a disease needs expert care, not quack literature. Alfalfa tablets won't do anything for arthritis except cause some patients to lose valuable time in finding competent help. A daily all-purpose vitamin tablet is useful for many people who do not get or eat a balanced diet. Excess vitamins are just eliminated from the body, or the fat soluble ones may build up to a level to adversely affect one's health — causing vitamin A and D toxicity.

The emblem of medicine is often pictured as a staff with a snake, or serpent, coiled around it.

In the earliest days, the art of healing was practiced with much superstition and magic.

The serpent was sacred to the ancient Greeks as the symbol of health. It was supposed to have great healing powers, since it could shed its skin and appear young again.

This tells us why, in art, we usually see Aesculapius (pronounced es kyoo LAY pee us), ancient Greek god of medicine, holding a club-like staff with a large serpent coiled around it.

The staff and serpent is used as the symbol of medicine today. In the United States, we sometimes see a winged staff with two serpents coiled around it as the medical emblem.

But this staff, called a caduceus, is really the magic wand of Mercury, the swift messenger of the gods in Roman mythology.

Aesculapius' staff with its single serpent is the true symbol of medicine.

We believe that it was the great poet Culbertson who wrote: "A little false card now and then is relished by the best of men."

In that case we must assume that today's North and South don't belong in that best of men category because when the smoke of battle had cleared away they weren't at all happy.

On the other hand good old West was ecstatic.

West didn't think much of his hand or his chance of doing any good with a heart or diamond lead so he put his jack of clubs on the table. Instead of playing quickly from the table, South thought a while before playing the king from dummy. This gave East time to see that the only possible tricks for the defense would be in trumps and that some desperate measures were necessary to keep South from taking the double trump finesse. The double finesse is the best percentage play when you hold nine trumps; it becomes a perfect safety play when you hold 10.

So East dropped the queen of clubs under dummy's king. South won, led the jack of spades, watched East produce the deuce, thought a while, rose with his ace to guard against a possible club ruff and was one down when West showed out.

Something is missing

On Sports

It's ironic that the East Bay Athletic League, which plays some of the best high school soccer in the Bay Area, cannot participate in a section or post-season playoff.

The North Coast Section does not have soccer playoffs, so there is no opportunity for the EBAL champion to advance after the round-robin season.

This sets the NCS apart from the Central Coast Section which has had a soccer section playoff for several seasons.

The big obstacle in the way of an NCS playoff is the fact the leagues that do play soccer compete at different seasons. Some, like the EBAL, compete in the winter, and others, like the Foothill Athletic League, participate in the fall.

The CCS is much more organized than that. Every major league in that section has soccer teams and the season is played during the winter.

Gene Cassvan

What makes it so frustrating for valley soccer fans is the fact the EBAL champion could probably win a NCS tournament if there was one. And the EBAL champ would probably be competitive against CCS powers like Saratoga or Rioridan of San Francisco, the West Catholic Athletic League champion.

But there appears to be some hope for EBAL soccer boosters.

Coaches from the EBAL and the Catholic Athletic League wanted to have an all-star or league championship playoff game between the two loops this past season, but were unable to get permission from the NCS in time, according to Dublin mentor Gene Cassvan.

"I'd like to see a Bay Area playoff involving all the top teams from the leagues," said Cassvan. "I'm in favor of any sort of soccer playoff. Most of the other coaches in the league are too."

"I've seen teams from San Jose, San Francisco and Marin County play," Cassvan went on. "They play pretty good soccer. I think our league would do well in competition like that but we might not win it. There are a lot of good high school soccer teams around."

Cassvan may be underestimating the EBAL somewhat.

The EBAL schools annually have an outstanding non-league record. Even the league's worst squads do well against outside competition before the EBAL season begins.

Many if not most of the players on Chabot College's team are from the valley area. When one takes in the fact that Chabot won the state junior college championship two years running before this past season, you can get a good idea of the caliber of soccer played in EBAL schools.

Part of the reason for the EBAL's strength in soccer comes from the fact the valley has perhaps the strongest youth soccer programs in Northern California. This is borne out by the number of kids involved in the sport and the success the local youth teams have had in tournament competition against "outside" teams.

As a result of the outstanding youth programs many valley kids already possess a knowledge of soccer by the time they enter high school. Some of the best athletes in EBAL schools turn out for the soccer team instead of basketball, the traditional "major" winter sport.

The NCS has sectional playoffs in virtually every sport except soccer. Of course, the reason for this is because the different NCS leagues play soccer in either the winter or fall.

This doesn't make sense. In every other sport (except for tennis) the NCS leagues compete during the same season.

Why isn't it that way in soccer? Surveys taken in leagues where soccer isn't played (like the Diablo Valley Athletic League) have shown soccer to be high on the list of sports students are most interested in.

It would make sense to establish soccer competition in every NCS league. Once that is done, the next step would be to have all the leagues play the sport at the same time.

Then we would finally get a chance to see NCS playoffs in the country's fastest - growing sport.

Amador ends Mat's hopes

Granada High suffered a slow death in the East Bay Athletic League basketball playoffs Friday evening. Amador Valley baited the Mats all night, letting them get no closer than five points and no further than 11 in a strong defensive second half to stunt Granada, 52-41, in first-round action in Pleasanton.

Although the Dons held a slim 19-18 halftime lead after a 10-8 first quarter advantage, they never once surrendered the lead to the scrappy Mats, who watched their best chance at a win float away early in the second half.

The Dons scored 10 the first points of the second half to gain a 29-18 lead they kept for good. Rick Howard, who finished the night the game's leading scorer (18 points) and rebounder (15), led the deadly charge with a trio of baskets, eventually getting ten of his final 18 points in the third quarter alone.

The Mats crept back to 33-26 entering the final stanza, but lacked any offensive continuity and threw up hurried shots that just wouldn't go.

The Dons, on the other hand, went to the free throw line in the final three minutes to sink six tosses in a row, including four by 14-point man John Sevo, to snuff another Mat comeback. Granada closed to within 35-30 and 41-36 but couldn't cut the gap.

The teams waltzed through a lay-back first quarter, neither team getting called for a foul. Dan Lambert and Joey Wujek drove to the basket well for the Mats in the first half to keep them even with the Dons. Wujek finished with 17 points while Lambert netted 12.

While the Mats continually tried comeback attempts in the final quarter, it was the "surprise" outside shooting of Sam Jorgensen, whose two fourth-quarter jump shots fizzled a Mat rally, that put the tempo of the game back to the Dons.

"That's Sam's shot, or so he keeps telling me," laughed AV coach Skip Mohatt after the game. "We weren't looking for just layups yet."

Dons romp over Pokes

Amador Valley High's varsity basketball team overcame a first-quarter deficit to slowly put away Livermore High, 63-52 last night at Granada High in Livermore to win the first-ever Shaughnessy Playoffs.

Again proving that conservative basketball means wins, the Dons grabbed the lead early in the second quarter and sheltered it the rest of the game with good defense and sure passing.

Livermore came out hot, jumping out to a 12-9 first quarter lead behind the shooting of Mark McCreary and John Farfan. McCreary led all scorers in the game.

Rick Howard and Hall shared scoring honors for the Dons, netting 13 points apiece while Sevo canned 11. Tim Jenkins scored 14 points in a losing cause for the Pokes, as Jenkins, and McCreary finished out their varsity career for Livermore.

Dugan champ as Chabot wins

SUISUN CITY — Former Dublin High School wrestler Kevin Dugan won the 158 - pound championship and his Chabot College teammates romped to the Northern California Community College crown here Friday night.

Dugan defeated Bill Baker of Ohlone 11-2. The former Gael wrestler, ahead 2-1 at the end of the first period, put the match away with four unanswered points in the second stanza. Dugan, a freshman, now has an 18-2 mark this season.

Keg classes

The adults' classes will be held starting this Thursday at 10 a.m. The youngsters' classes will begin Saturday at 10 a.m.

The Learn to Bowl program includes certified instructors, a series of four lessons for the bowler, classroom and on the lane instruction.

Child care service plus league play will begin on the fifth week.

Registration fees are $3 for adults and $1 for youngsters.

Interested persons may sign-up at Granada Bowl or call 447-5600.

Meanwhile, Chabot was making a mockery of the team race as it qualified all 10 of its wrestlers for the state meet. The Gladiators compiled 120½ points to trounce second - place Diablo Valley, which had but 74. San Jose City College was third with 56½ points.

Ohlone won the small - school title with 46½ points. Chabot got another good effort from Jesus Flores in the 118 - pound class. Flores defeated top-seeded Dave Cotti of San Jose, 5-4 in one of the Gladiators' toughest wins of the finals.

Other Chabot winners were Bill Wylie (150), John Wilhite (177), Curtis Bledsoe (190) and Dave Shaw (heavyweight).

Joe Stallworth (126) and Bill Choate (167) were the only Gladiator wrestlers not to make the finals. They both finished fourth.

Watson leads AV girls to playoff crown

Jamie Watson calmly tossed home four free throws in the final minute to key Amador Valley girls' 63-60 basketball win over Monte Vista last night at Granada High School in Livermore.

The Dons, who Friday night topped Livermore to get the right to meet MV last night, thus win the playoffs between the East Bay Athletic League's tri-champions and head for the North Coast Section playoffs this week.

It was a classic see-saw battle, the lead switching hands frequently between the teams, but the Dons just had a little bit more left in the end.

The Mustangs made a valiant comeback effort late in the fourth quarter. Trailing 45-38, Sue Collar canned two jumpers while Linda Silva added pair to push the 'Stangs ahead 46-45 with 45 seconds left in the third quarter. But Watson pushed home a jumper for the Dons to give them the advantage entering the fourth quarter.

AV never surrendered the lead after that, jumping out to a 55-48 lead in the fourth quarter. The Mustangs still didn't give up, ringing off a 10-3 tear to tie the game at 58-58.

Then Watson completed her heroics, sinking two free throws with 56 seconds to go, and adding another pair with 24 seconds going to put the game safely in the bag for the Dons. The latter pair gave them a 63-58 lead, and the Mustangs fizzled away.

The fourth syndrome began in the opening minutes as the Dons raced off to an 8-0 lead.

Debbie Oxen cherry-picked in the back court to snatch two long passes and put them away for baskets, while AV's Jamie Watson and Jayne Kuhns added field goals to lead the charge. But the Mustangs quickly wiped out what advantage the Dons had with their first bucket of the game on a Carol Dolsby jump shot with 4:31 to go in the first quarter.

They quickly added three more baskets in the minute to tie the game, two by Dolsby and another by Sue Collar.

The teams traded baskets, and then Oxen swished another jumper for Amador to carry them to a 12-10 first quarter lead.

The Mustangs edged ahead for the first time in the game on another Dolsby jumper and a follow shot by Karin Fischer 1:30 into the quarter, making it 14-12. The see - saw dipped the other way when Kuhns single - handedly put AV back up 18-14 with four free throws and a jumper.

The Mustangs tied it again at 18 and the teams went to 22-22, before the Dons raced out to a 27-22 lead behind the strong play of Oxen with 1:28 left in the half.

The Mustangs crept back, though, climbing to within four at 33-29 at half-time.

Chabot College's basketball team fell to 4-9 in the Golden Gate Conference race as the Gladiators dropped an 87-75 decision to powerful Foothill in Los Altos Hills.

Emerson stars

BearCubs edge Glads

HAYWARD — Former Chabot College pitcher Bob Emerson came back to haunt his former teammates yesterday as he pitched the last four innings and the University of California junior varsity took a 5-3 win over the Gladiators here.

Emerson entered the contest with one out in the fifth stanza allowed three hits and one run while striking out three batters and walking only one.

The BearCubs only had one earned run but made the most of two Chabot errors and six walks to take the win.

California staged its winning rally in the seventh stanza without the aid of a hit.

After Jim Selwebella grounded out to open the inning and Steve Baccarri fanned Tom Fredericko and Matt Spano walked.

Then Mitch Wilson hit a ball to shortstop Dean Busch who threw the ball to first baseman Dan Pearson. However, Pearson dropped the ball and it rolled to the fence by the Cal dugout, allowing Fredericko and Spano to score.

Cal had taken a 3-0 lead on five hits in the first four innings. Selwebella opened the game with a single, stole second, and came home on two successive grounders by Baccarri and Fredericko.

The BearCubs added two more runs in the fourth. Dave Jaranello singled to open the stanza, Paul Pinnelli struck out and second Bear pitcher Matt Sullanes grounded out, sending Jaranello to second. An error by Selwebella Baccarri brought in the two runs.

Chabot came back with two runs in their half of the fourth as Pat Cronin, Don Randle and Pearson each singled. However, Rob Jensen hit the ball back to Sullanes who threw Cronin out at the plate before Jensen was tagged at first. Then, Randy LaRocca, who had two hits on the day, singled to score Randle and Pearson.

In Friday action the Gladiators romped over Contra Costa 13-4 in Hayward.

Chabot College's soccer team will play two-time defending NCAA champion University of San Francisco in an exhibition game, Sunday, Sept. 18 at Chabot's Valley Campus.

Chabot captured two straight state junior college soccer championships, before failing to qualify for the Golden Gate Conference playoffs this past season.

The Gladiators also have plans to play Ohlone College on Sept 10 at the Pleasanton Sports Park. The Glads played two games at the Pleasanton site last year.

Cowboys top MV

Outlasting adversity that would have given lesser teams ample excuse to give up and think about next year, the Livermore Cowboys hung on grimly Friday night and pulled out a 64-61 win over Monte Vista in the first round of the East Bay Athletic League playoffs at the Livermore High gym.

But the location proved to be of little advantage, at least as far as affecting the officiating, for the Cowboys played most of the second half without three starters — who had four fouls and were on the bench or fouled out soon after returning to the lineup.

The win avenged an earlier loss to the Mustangs on this same court, and this triumph was truly a team effort. The Cowboys played a sticky 2-3 zone that forced Monte Vista to live or die on long outside shots, and when the reserves came in to pick up for foul - plagued starters, there was little

"That was the best game Granada has played against us of the three we've had said Mohatt, whose Dons topped the Mats in their previous two meetings. "They kept coming back. They would get four points on us, but never a six-point run."

"Howard and (Don) Hall were very strong inside," Mohatt pointed out, and Hall's rebounds are a season high for him. All in all, we played a decent first half on defense and a strong defensive second half."

dropoff in the defense that won the game.

Offensively the star was Dick Patterson, who seemed to spend most of the evening at the foul line and wound up with five baskets and 10 of 14 free throws for 20 points. Tim Jenkins, who led the Cowboys in scoring all year, had only 12 and fouled out with 4:47 to go in the fourth period.

Since Brian Schweiger had fouled out with 1:24 to go in the third period and guard John Farfan had trekked to the bench for the same reason with 6:31 left in the fourth period, the Cowboys had reason to simply give up and retire for the rest of the season.

But sophomore Mike May overcame some early game jitters to get some key rebounds and senior Mark McCreary had three big baskets and a clutch rebound down the stretch to assure the win.

Livermore built up an eight point halftime lead by stalling the Mustang running game and hitting 46.4 per cent from the field, despite a dismal 10 for 11 for Jenkins.

When Jenkins fouled out Livermore led 55-46, but began chipping away. Sparked by whirling Steve Jayko, Monte Vista cut the margin to 61-59 on an amazing layup by Jayko with 0:44 left, but the senior guard missed a free throw and a shot and Livermore got the ball back again.

After Patterson missed a free throw with 25 seconds left, Monte Vista's Kevin Jones fired up an off - balance jumper that rebounded into the hands of McCreary. He fired a court - long pass to Ric Cleveland, who did the Hustle, the Funky Chicken and The Bump on the way to the hop but the refs didn't catch the steps and it was 63-59 Livermore with 10 seconds left, and the Cowboys were in the finals.

McCreary wound up with 14 points, while Jayko led the losers with 12.

Dons seal Pokes' fate

DANVILLE — Strange as it may sound Amador Valley's heartbreaking loss to Livermore Thursday night in the final round - robin contest of the East Bay Athletic League girls' basketball race gave the Dons confidence against the Pokes when they played again in the opening round of the playoffs at Monte Vista High here Friday night.

"When we came back from 19 points down, tied the game, then lost it in overtime we knew we could beat them," said a happy Don mentor Lottie Bain.

Beat the Pokes is exactly what Amador Valley did in the playoff opener as the Dons scored 17 points in the final period to down the Livermore squad, 53-47.

Amador Valley entered the final period trailing by two points but the strong free throw shooting of Debbs Oxsen and the fine all-around play of Jayne Kuhns and Sheryl Withoft made up the gap quickly for the Dons.

The Dons moved into the lead rapidly in the final period. Amador took a five-point lead at 47-42 with 4:10 left before Kim Bohannon and Pat Shirley hit buckets to close the gap.

However, Shirley soon fouled out of the contest and the Dons took advantage of her absence to put the game away.

Kuhns hit a short jumper with 1:20 remaining to give Amador Valley a 50-47 lead. After two jump balls failed to result in any more scores Oxsen iced the game with three free throws.

Livermore had seemed taken command of the contest in the third period when Lee Hardiman, who led all scorers with 28 markers, canned 15 points on seven field goals and a charity toss.

Hardiman stole the ball three times and Shirley's strong defense prevented the Dons from going inside.

Amador Valley took an 11-7 lead after the first quarter and increased it to 24-19 at the halftime break before Hardiman went wild in the third stanza.

The fourth quarter was all Amador Valley, however, and that proved to be the ball game.

Despite her strong defensive work Shirley was held to six points by the Amador Valley defense.

"I just told our players whoever was near Shirley to sandwich her," admitted Bains.

"The whole key to our success tonight was our aggressive play," she went on. "It was really an effort by the whole team."

Oxsen led the Amador Valley scorers with 17 points, 7 of them coming of free throws. Kuhns added 14 markers and Withoft 11.

Granada High's girls' basketball team ended its season on an unhappy note, falling to San Ramon 44-38 Thursday night.

A third-quarter rally by the Wolves was the turning point in the contest. San Ramon scored eight straight points to take a commanding lead. The

SJ over Vikings

Diablo Valley College's basketball team was without three items Friday night: Mike Westbrook, Dan Callan, an win number five, as the Vikings dropped a 73-64 decision to San Jose City College.

According to Vike mentor Gerry Jones, Westbrook found out what his grades were. So did the league officials, who made Westbrook at least temporarily ineligible for the fading season.

Jones added that Westbrook's ineligibility won't have any effect on the games played so far during the season.

Callan, meanwhile, had troubles of his own, as he watched the game from the sidelines while recovering from a sprained back and a case of whiplash he received in an auto accident.

HAYWARD — Four Chabot College track and field performers set their lifetime best and two other equaled theirs in a five-way non - scoring meet here Friday.

Other teams in the meet were San Joaquin Delta, CCSF, Laney, and Alameda.

Ken Grace captured the pole vault for the Glads with a 14-6 leap. Mike Robinson the shot put with a 49-2 3/4 toss and Mark Preston the javelin at 193-1.

Mark Molina recorded a 1:56.8 800 - meters but finished second to teammate Dave Emery's 1:56.4. Rich Judy equaled his lifetime best in the 400 - meters in 48.7 and Greg Beatch ran a personal - best equalling 14.7 in the 110-meter high hurdles.

Perhaps the most exciting race of the day was the 440 - yard relay. Chabot finished fourth in 42.7. CCSF won in 41.8, Laney was second in 41.9 and Alameda third in 42.1.

GS tops Braves

BUFFALO — Phil Smith canned 37 points to lead the Golden State Warriors to a 104-97 win over the Buffalo Braves here Friday night.

The victory moved the Warriors' record to 33-28 and kept them close to gaining the fourth best record in the Western Conference, something they must have if they are to have a home court advantage in next month's playoffs.

Golden State took a 52-50 lead at halftime and gradually increased the margin in the second half.

The Warriors won in spite of the refs, who called 27 fouls on them to just 16 for Buffalo.

Q. My husband and I recently sold our vacation home in Arnold, Ca. for $35,000. and we made an offer on a new vacation home at North Shore, on Lake Tahoe, which will also be used for rental. We have been told we will have to pay taxes on the gain from the sale of the first home even though we plan to reinvest all that money immediately in the purchase of the Tahoe home. We thought when you reinvest you can defer taxes on your gains? G.O. Dublin A.

Sorry, but it looks like you over looked one small rule in the IRS book on deferred taxes. You can only defer taxes on the gain or profit from the sale of a home when it is used as your principle place of residence, and then only if you purchase a new residence within 18 months. You are allowed 24 months for new construction. Any time you hold property income for growth, your only shelter against taxes when you sell is to be sure you have met the requirements for long term capital gains, thus avoiding taxes on about 75% of your gain. You can also defer taxes on gains of income property through exchanges, under certain rules of the IRS.

Q. In one of your recent columns, you answered a writer's question regarding the cause of the rapid rise in prices of homes here in the Valley. Your answer was general but good. My question is more direct, when and what is going to stop this run away in home prices? V.N. Dublin

A. When ... Never ... What ... Nothing ... Even during the Great Depression the only thing that had any value was land and homes when the things settled down once again in the mid thirties. Some type of inflation will always be around. Manplan Consultants, a Chicago firm, ran some figures through its calculators and came up with the following prices for a few every day necessities in the year 2001, using today's averages, and only a 6 per cent inflation rate. An average home will cost $171,600, a low-priced car $17,160, the Sunday paper $1.50, toothpaste $2.57, 1 lb. of hamburger $4.67 and worst yet, a Big Mac will be $3.22. Incomes? If you are now making $10,000 or so and inflation stays at 6%, then, says Manplan, you'll need $45,000 in 2001 just to stay even.

Q. We have just sold our home, which has a swimming pool. The contract required a termite report, but did not require a pool inspection. The buyers ordered an inspection and the company found several things wrong with the pool. Since the contract did not ask for an inspection of the pool do we have to pay for the repairs? F.S. San Ramon

A. Probably. I don't know from your letter what the fine print of the contract said as to what you as a seller were agreeable to warrant. In most contracts the seller warrants that all fixtures, appliances, plumbing, and etc. are to be in working order at close of escrow. The fact that you don't have inspections before closings doesn't relieve you of responsibility for the condition the house or appurtenances, which includes pools and equipment.

San Ramon Valley schools' race

Candidates call for 'return to basics'

SAN RAMON— The 11 candidates for the San Ramon Valley Unified School District board reiterated what they felt is a need to return to the basics at a well-attended forum at Walt Disney School Thursday.

Though many of the board aspirants have coffee scheduled between now and election day March 8, there are no further candidates nights slated.

Sue Cramer and Pat Neil Althizer both stressed a need to have a board member from the southern section of the district, which extends from Alcosta Boulevard on the south to the city limits of Walnut Creek on the north. Both Mrs. Cramer and Althizer reside in San Ramon.

Mrs. Cramer is in her second year as leader of the California High School Parents Club.

Alluding to the impressive credentials stated at previous candidates nights in the district, Mrs. Cramer said, "I'm not an educator, I'm not a corporate executive, I'm a mommy who went to school a long time ago." "I'm concerned about the schools in this area. I think it's crucial that there be somebody from this end of the Valley on the board."

Althizer said the district must develop a closer working relationship with the Valley Community Services District, initiate surveys to determine feelings of the community on various issues, and have more candidates nights... and fewer candidates signs."

Claudia Edwards emphasized her school and community involvement, saying they have given her insights into problems of the district. She told the approximately 75 persons present she has been involved with schools in the district on almost a day-to-day basis for the last five years.

Ronald Harris listed the prerequisites for being a board member, coupling the complexities of a $21 million plus budget (of the San Ramon district) with his business and decision-making background. "I have gained experience in my job (director of research and development for Clorox Co. in Pleasanton) that would be relevant to that of a school district's."

Thomas Jennings, an engineer who formerly taught at the community college level, said the most glaring problem facing the district is a lack of attention to fundamentals.

Jennings strongly favors a 12-month school year, and says the San Ramon district is top-heavy with administration. He added that the latter area was a prime one for cost cutting.

Harline Kruger said the district will have to set some priorities, because of the escalating property taxes. "We don't have a school problem," she concluded, "we have a societal problem."

Greg McCoy, who noted he will be joining his law firm associates as a full partner March 1, once again underscored need for all candidates to read the Serrano versus Priest decision. He also emphasized the need by board members to "do their homework."

Robert Schepman proposed setting-up of a community advisory committee, the need for a stronger builders policy, and providing students with "marketable skills."

Joan Scott, a resident of Danville six years, urged a return to concentrated study of history and government. She also supports greater discipline in schools...and doesn't like some of the changes she's seen in the school system in recent years.

Donald Sledge, referring to previous comments about the need for a south section rep, said he lived exactly 7.2 miles from Disney School, in Greenbrook. Holder of a B.A. and Masters in management, Sledge said there is a need for smoke detectors at schools in the district.

Harold Zuckerman, 50, the only incumbent in the race, said it is important to have some sort of continuity on the board.... "though I feel I represent more than that."

A principal at Fremont

High in Oakland, Zuckerman is currently board president and has lived in the San Ramon Valley most of his life.

Trustee seekers see future for Livermore school system

Gail Sidhu

Gail Sidhu, a candidate for the two-year seat on the Livermore school board, was recently questioned about her attitude concerning the drop in enrollment in Livermore schools.

She said she does not expect the decline to continue for too long. She expressed her conviction that if our average daily attendance (ADA) funds are reduced by the state, one way to adjust to that condition would be by improving administrative efficiency.

Mrs. Sidhu gave the example of three departments in the district, Buildings and Grounds, Facilities Management and Community Services, with administrators' salaries of $16,000 to $26,000.

"Those departments have overlapping responsibilities and could be consolidated to achieve economy and to smooth out periods of slack and excessive work loads," she said.

She concluded that she is opposed to any layoffs and any reduction in employment should be by attrition.

Barbara Stear

Livermore school board candidate Barbara Stear spoke out on academic standards in a recent press release.

"We're spending more money than ever before and getting poorer results!" she noted. "Even those schools receiving massive amounts of tax dollars for special programs often do no better than schools not receiving these monies."

"Parents know which schools are 'producing' and which are not! Evidence those parents determined to keep their children in the Jackson Avenue school in spite of the administrative boundary changes. Jackson must be doing something right!"

One answer, I believe, lies with a piece of legislation called the Hart Legislation which forces school districts to set up minimum graduation requirements. I presently serve on the Secondary Advisory Committee composed of secondary principals, teachers, parents and students which is endeavoring to establish minimum competencies for various secondary grade levels.

"It's a massive job but a real step in the right direction. By establishing minimum competencies for each level, we have a means of assessing and directing our district as a whole. This could be a valuable tool for raising the academic level of achievement in our schools."

Jan Brice

Livermore school board candidate Jan Brice lists the following activities for the coming week:

Monday, Feb. 28: Coffee at Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andrews, 1263 Onyx Road, 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, March 1: Coffee at home of Lois Ann Bedford, 660 Tina Way, 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday, March 2: Coffee at Mr. and Mrs. D. Montan, 2976 Kennedy, 8 p.m.

Thursday, March 3: Candidates' Night sponsored by Arroyo Mocho School, 7:30 p.m.

Details on Brice's campaign for a four-year seat on the board are available from Cindy Duwe, 455-6343.

Manuel Prado

Livermore school board incumbent Manuel Prado outlined seven goals for the school district, in a recent campaign release.

"We as parents, educators and administrators must continue to perfect these goals," he said:

1. "We must continue to build upon our improved foundation;
2. We must implement scholastic standards at all grade levels;
3. We must increase student and staff accountability;
4. We must implement high school standards;
5. We must continue to work towards a balanced educational approach (vocational vs. academic);
6. We must continue to promote an environment for community involvement.
7. We must establish the best educational system we can provide."

Opposes pro educators

Incumbent supports parents

Livermore school board member Jim Davis, running for a second term on the board, doesn't like the idea of entrusting professional educators with too many decisions.

"The parents," he asserts, "are paying for the education and providing the children. They are qualified to know what the needs are."

"If we leave it in the hands of professional educators, we detract from the effectiveness of education on a local basis."

The ideal school system, as Davis sees it, features a strong "partnership" between parents, students and school personnel. "When one party advocates responsibility," he says, "it's the child who suffers."

The 41-year-old mechanical engineer and his wife have four children in the schools — Dan and Debbie at Livermore High, Cindy at East Avenue Intermediate and Jimmy at Jackson Avenue Elementary.

After living in Livermore 19 years and watching the school system grow — sometimes in fits and starts — Davis attaches great importance to the building program approved by voters two years ago and now nearing completion.

"More equitable education" is the important result of the $10 million undertaking, says Davis.

"In some instances, children were not given the same kind of program because of lack of facilities," he recalls. "Now, there is not an area in Livermore where we don't have schools we can be proud of." The district is remodeling two intermediate schools and building fully equipped "cores" for five elementary schools.

Another achievement during Davis's term on the board was a city-wide needs assessment project two years ago. That undertaking involved inviting parents, teachers and students together at each of the district's 22 schools to list and put into priority order the needs they felt each school had, from new carpets to better discipline.

Some of the needs identified by the community have already been taken care of. "The next step," hopes Davis, "is to re-assess those needs, maybe with the same format we used last time but with different questions. I'd like to shoot for next year."

When Davis joined the board in 1973, no administrators, from principals to superintendent, were being evaluated. The trustees quickly changed that and now all administrators are personally reviewed by the board.

"The staff must be accountable," Davis believes. "I feel it elevates the level of education in the district and acts as a stimulus. The board should be the ones to say: What is the direction of education in this district? Is that the direction we want to go in?"

During Davis's tenure on the board, he has noted "a strengthening of academic and vocational programs. There has been an upward trend in our national test scores, thanks to a team approach — the combined efforts of board, staff and community."

Staffing ratios are "more equitable" now, says Davis, thanks to a move he supported to take some of the aides away from open-space schools and spread them around in the traditional schools as well. He also looks favorably on the district's plan to give standard tests which will enable everyone to follow the year-to-year progress of the district.

But, notes the candidate, "A board member's work is really never accomplished."

In his hoped-for second term on the board, Davis looks toward improving evaluation procedures for district programs.

He wants to see all the new curriculum guides in the district begin to be used by the teachers and hopes to see minimum skill standards set up for all grades, especially for high school graduation.

He's concerned about the lack of money for deteriorating equipment, especially school buses, and would like to see replacement costs built into the budget.

One of Davis's special skills, since he works for the federal ERDA (Energy Research and Development Agency) office in Oakland, is "government perspective." He's angling for some additional federal funds to add to the operating budget and led an attempt to finance solar heating for one of the new schools.

Although an opponent of binding arbitration, Davis supports the current teachers' contract. His suggestion for avoiding an "adversary relationship" between the board as employers and the teachers as labor is to have a "discussion in concept" months before hard bargaining begins.

At that time, board members and teachers could meet personally to "scope" various issues and find out where real disagreements lie and where reasonable compromises could come about.

Multi-year contracts could be another alternative to long, trying months of negotiations every spring, he suggests.

Dancing for Disney

Helen 'ready' for new role

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Everybody knows that Helen Reddy is a great singer. But how about Helen Reddy, the dancer?

"Oh, my dear, she's marvelous," says Onna White. Onna White is the choreographer on the big, splashy new Disney movie, "Pete's Dragon," which will be the Disney Christmas release next December.

When they hired Helen Reddy for the lead, they had no idea she could dance. They figured they'd let her sing, and coax her through a few simple dance steps in the big musical numbers.

"But it turns out she started as a dancer," Onna White says. "And she's fabulous. I couldn't believe it."

"This is a complete new Helen Reddy. Not only does she sing and dance, but she looks lovely. Frank Phillips (the cinematographer) lit her so beautifully. She has the most beautiful eyes — they're brown velvet."

When they found out they had a genuine dancer on their hands, they added more dance numbers for Helen. Onna White describes the biggest number in the film:

"She's dancing in a tavern on some revolving kegs of beer, and she really stomps on them. This forces the corks out, so that beer spews over everybody."

It was tricky, dancing on revolving beer kegs. Onna says Helen did it perfectly. But, then, she was called back for a minor retake and all she had to do was stand on the beer keg and she hurt her leg.

That wasn't the only injury to a cast member of "Pete's Dragon." Shelley Winters, playing the meanie in the film, was made to undergo many indignities — she was filmed in mud, in water, in a barrel of tar.

"They're going to kill me before this is over," Shelley said. One of her numbers was shot on a bed of pine needles, and she slipped and hurt her knee. But, since Shelley plays the wicked stepmother, the audience will probably applaud.

"Pete's Dragon" is a fanciful thing about a 9-year-old boy in a New England town at the turn of the century. His only friend is a dragon; the boy and his lighthouse-keeper-buddy (Mickey Rooney) are the only ones who can see the dragon.

Naturally, this plot gives the Disney people a chance to do some animation, and some animation-plus-live action footage. There is a dance number with a bunch of kids dancing with the visible-invisible dragon.

The Disney animators have worked out what they describe as an entirely new form of animation — three-dimensional, with a live background.

Don Chaffey, who is directing "Pete's Dragon," has done seven Disney films before, but all of them were shot either in England or Australia. This is his first film in the U.S.

"The difference?" he says. "The difference is that over here you're overstaffed. Imagine — five grips! Imagine — a transport chief, an assistant transport chief, a second assistant transport chief. It's too much, it slows things down."

Besides the boy (Sean Marshall) and Helen Reddy and Shelley Winters and Mickey Rooney, the cast includes Jim Dale, the English actor who wrote and starred in "Scapino" on Broadway, and Red Buttons.

"This is the finest part I've had since 'Sayonara,'" Buttons says. "Maybe it's even better, but 'Sayonara' was my first and, consequently, remains my favorite."

"And, I think this is the best picture I've been in since 'Sayonara,' too. I'm so excited about it that I can't fall asleep at night, just thinking about it."

Buttons says this is the first part he's had in a long time that gives him a chance to do what he was trained to do — be funny. Buttons was a comedian when he was 15 and a burlesque song-and-dance man before he was 21. In this one, he sings and dances and generally clown around.

Buttons says he's missed out on some serious roles because of his name. He says that producers decide that nobody with a funny name can be a serious actor.

"If I was starting today," he says, "I'd keep my real name — Aaron Chwatt. But, in the '30s when I started, you couldn't work with a name like that. Today, it's all right — today you have Gabe Kaplan. If he'd started in the '30s, he would have had to change his name, too."

In a decade or so, there may be a second generation of the Buttons family. Red has two children — Amy is 10 and Adam is 6 — and he says that Adam is a born comic.

"I played Las Vegas not long ago," Buttons says, "and I had Adam up on stage with me. I handed him the mike and the biggest laugh I ever heard in my life came from the audience when the kid picked up the mike and began singing 'Jingle Bells.' Even when he forgot the words, he improvised. He's a born performer."

Some show business parents, worried about the lack of security in the entertainment trade, would be upset about that. Not Red Buttons. He's delighted with Adam's tendency.

HELEN REDDY, as Nora in "Pete's Dragon," proves she's a capable dancer as well as singer, by performing on revolving kegs of beer.

Murray hopefuls eye future

(This is the fourth in a series on candidates running for the various school boards in the Valley. Candidates in each district have been asked to respond to four questions. Today's articles feature a Murray School District candidate and three Pleasanton Joint School District candidates)

Two positions will be open on the Murray School District Board of Trustees at elections of Tuesday, March 8, with four first-time campaigners and one incumbent vying.

David Foster

David Foster, 36, has resided in the district four years. He has a daughter in kindergarten at Frederiksen who, because of conversion of that school, will be going to Fallon next September.

Foster admits his involvement in schools has been a direct result of his daughter's pending move. He is also an active member of the Frederiksen Parent-Faculty Club and has helped in the classroom.

A graduate of Cal Poly Pomona in mathematics, Foster sees the most critical problem facing the district as lack of adequate program planning. "The present board has failed to provide any long range plan which identifies the needs of the community or sets goals for the educational establishment."

"The district has its own set of horror stories regarding waste and management due to poor planning—or no planning. I cannot emphasize enough the importance of thorough program planning for major decisions in education—and the importance of including evaluation as a major component of that planning," states Foster.

On the question of converting Frederiksen to seventh-eighth grade use, Foster says "Conversion of Frederiksen is a fact of life. The children are flexible—they will accept the change. As parents we have to make the change, too. My major concern over the conversion is the safety of the children. Children will be walking to and from their new schools, crossing busy streets. Drivers will be finding children in areas where they do not expect to find them. Our children's safety is an issue that the board must face immediately. No ifs, ands or buts—we need a positive safety program now!"

Foster believes the curriculum must include content that revolves around reality. "The schools must provide skills and knowledge development: mastery of the basic skills of learning."

He says that development of personal talent and interest identification and development should be strengthened. Foster believes that a broad range of alternatives to traditional physical education programs—such as gymnastics, yoga and body control—should be emphasized.

Jim Griffen

James A. Griffen, 42, is one of six candidates seeking three positions to be open on the Pleasanton school board come March 8.

He grew up in Michigan, served in the U.S. Navy and earned an engineering degree from Michigan State University.

Griffen moved to Pleasanton three years ago. He has three children in the school system and says he is "very concerned about the quality of education, in light of the ever-increasing costs of our schools."

His involvement with schools began in 1966 when he worked on a district "cost of quality education" study.

Since moving to Pleasanton, Griffen says, "I have been active in the parent advisory committees at all levels and a member of the district-community council. For the past two years, I have been a regular attendant at school board meetings. Finally, I have become familiar with the programs at each of the schools, the school budget, and the contract proposals. I have done my homework to become a knowledgeable Pleasanton school board candidate."

Griffen believes the district contract is probably the most immediate problem facing the school district.

"The solution to the teachers' contract lies in the middle ground where the changes from the past practices are not too great and the costs are within the budgetary allowances. Unfortunately, all of the facts on the negotiations are not yet public knowledge."

On the question of binding arbitration of grievances for certificated personnel, Griffen feels it is "an overrated issue. I can find no history of Pleasanton certificated employees grievances which would have been resolved differently with binding arbitration. As a school board member I could accept only limited forms of arbitration."

He lists as strong points in the Pleasanton curriculum the "outstanding educational programs at individuals schools, namely Walnut Grove's option program and Early Childhood Education at Fairlands."

Earnestine Schneider

Earnestine Schneider is a homemaker and 4½-year resident of Pleasanton.

She has been involved with school activities at both district and school level for four years. For the past two years she has regularly attended school board meetings, has been a member of the district-community council and of the Harvest Park Parent Advisory Committee. She served on the 1976 revenue limit committee and has tutored at both Harvest Park and Walnut Grove.

She sees the advent of collective bargaining with the resulting disagreement over contract as the paramount problem currently facing the school district. "It has turned the focus of the teacher and the board from education (the reason for our schools) to labor relations."

In regards to binding arbitration, Mrs. Schneider says binding arbitration of any disputed contract provision is not an acceptable concept. There may be, she adds, certain limited areas which could be successfully arbitrated.

"It is hoped that as clear a contract as possible will be written this first year and that arbitration will not be necessary," Mrs. Schneider adds.

Mrs. Schneider believes the basic skills deserve more emphasis than they are now receiving.

She also feels that the lack of challenge being offered gifted students in the district is another weakness.

Mrs. Schneider concludes by saying "curriculum strengths are almost universally tied to the strengths of individual teachers."

system. Their responsibility is to the community and the provision of a third party outside of a court of law mandating an action by the board is an abrogation of that responsibility."

Reidy sees no specific weak points in the district curriculum. "Judging from the development of my own children. He says he is particularly encouraged by the creation of the Graduation Task Force and the standards that are being established."

Dennis Reidy

Dennis Reidy, 39, after being appointed to the board to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Guy Clark, is now seeking a full four-year term.

Except for a two-year period during which they lived in the Los Angeles area, the Reidys have lived in the district since 1965. He is self-employed as a realtor associate.

His service in local schools has been as a parent attending parents' club meetings, helping in the music program, and attending the committee meetings conducted in preparation of the ECE program at Valley View School.

Reidy sees the most immediate problem facing the district as the prospective aftermath of the contract settlement. "Whatever the final terms, we will be faced with the pressing problem of overcoming the rancor and distrust that is common after the rhetoric of a labor dispute dies away. This, coupled with financial problems, is the difficulty I see over the immediate horizon."

Reidy says that binding arbitration "in the public arena" is not acceptable to him. "The board of trustees is just that—trustees of the community's educational
